Guard Aviator Drops Bombs Near Cadiz as Workers Are Attacked

NO ONE INJURED

Women Pickets Put In Jail by Deputies

CAMBRIDGE, June 8.—An Ohio National Guard aviator dropped gas bombs onto a crowd of rioting strike pickets and forced them to retreat in disorder during a clash late yesterday with Guernsey-co sheriff's deputies, state militia officers reported today.

The trouble started after Sheriff Gracey and deputies arrested two women pickets for allegedly stoning cars transporting workmen employed at the Harriet mine.

Men pickets attacked the deputies, swinging clubs.

FLEW FROM CADIZ

Unable to quell the disturbance, a hurry call was put in by the sheriff for the state militia plane quartered at Cadiz. Lt. Carl Bushong flew to the mine at once, dropped tear gas bombs, and broke up the battle.

Sheriff's deputies then took the women pickets away to jail while the men, including husbands of the women, hooted and jeered, the militiamen said. The women will be arraigned later. Women and children have both been used in picket lines recently, the officers stated.

None was injured in the skirmish, although it lasted for several minutes, it was reported. The Harriet mine is located about six miles from Cambridge.

Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson dispatched an airplane to eastern Ohio several weeks ago when disorders broke out near Cadiz, but there had been no cause for using it in actual conflict with pickets until yesterday.

PASTORS LEAD DRY'S TICKET

Lima and Zanesville Men Are Named by Prohibition Party To Oppose Wets.

COLUMBUS, June 8.—Promising to conduct a bitter campaign against wets and "straddlers" in the November election, the Ohio Prohibition party today had tentatively nominated Rev. Aaron S. Watkins of Lima for governor and Rev. E. R. Stafford of Zanesville for U. S. senator.

The pastor-led ticket was made tentative pending the outcome of the National Prohibition party convention at Indianapolis on July 6.

Both Rev. Watkins and Rev. Stafford are willing to make the campaign under the Prohibition banner, leaders said, following the state convention held here yesterday. The party's stand was stated as follows:

"The Prohibition party stands squarely for the entire constitution. Na straddling of issues. All men of both parties invited to vote for God, home and native land."

The remainder of the slate follows: Lieutenant governor, E. E. Frazier of Zanesville; secretary of state, Ira M. Petersime, of Gettysburg; auditor of state, W. D. Miller of Galena; treasurer of state, J. C. Gordon of Bergholz; congressional-at-large, W. A. Fox of Zanesville; and Rev. C. D. Grant of Gettysburg.

The Ohio delegation of 12 which will go to the national convention will be headed by Prescott Gillilan of Columbus, Ohio national committeeman.

Believe Liquor Caused Death Of Child, 4

CINCINNATI, June 8.—Reports that the death of four-year-old Georgia Edith Stouder was caused by drinking moonshine whiskey were investigated today by police, who ordered a post mortem examination and held Walter Penny, 27, for questioning.

Penny, according to information given to police, gave the child a glass of whiskey to drink while she was staying at the home of a neighbor, while her sister, Fern Studer, 17, was absent on a shopping trip.

Penny, when interrogated, denied giving the girl any liquor, and declared he did not know how she could have obtained it.

Dr. A. C. Ross told police he was summoned to the Studer home by the girl's sister, and found Georgia in a critical condition from what appeared to be "alcoholic poisoning."

The county board of education has voted to consolidate the South Bloomfield village and Harrison township school districts, whereby the South Bloomfield board of education would be abolished.

This is an economy measure, by which several hundred dollars might be saved each year.

At the present time the Bloomfield board of education owes Ashville nearly $6000 for tuition of high school pupils.

THOMAS 'LOST HEAD' FORMER AIDE CHARGES

Payne Appears Before Senate Committee Testifying Against Warden

CITES INSTANCES

Says He Was Illegally Found Insane

COLUMBUS, June 8.—Charges that Warden Preston E. Thomas "lost his head" and tried to run away when thirteen convicts made a break from Ohio penitentiary in 1926 were made before state senate investigators today by William H. Payne, former secretary to the Warden.

Payne also accused the Warden of having him illegally committed to the state hospital for the insane here.

"On the day of the break in 1926 the warden completely lost his self possession," Payne testified.

MAKES CHARGES

"I'll tell you what Price Russell, former chairman of the board of clemency, told me later. He said the warden came hurriedly out of his office and climbed out the last window when the trouble started."

Payne, secretary to the warden from 1924 to 1927, charged that he was illegally confined in insane hospitals at the behest of the warden until April 30, 1931.

"I received a notice to call at the sheriff's office and when I did I was taken into custody."

At the time he testified he had on his person a "prize note" from a prisoner. The note he said was confiscated by deputies.

"The affect of this note was that the prisoner who wrote it (a man named Madden) had paid $500 to Russell, the chairman of the clemency board, to affect his release and that $300 more was demanded before his liberty could be obtained."

"I intercepted the note, made a copy and turned the original over to the warden."

"IGNORED RULES

"Dozens of times" while Payne was employed at the prison he charged the warden completely ignored civil service rules in the appointment of guards.

"He would appoint a man temporarily for thirty days and at the end of that time he would make the appointment permanent. The appointee would thus never have to take civil service examination."

INCENDIARISM FEARED IN FIRE IN CLEVELAND; LIST 14 DEAD

Body of Fifth Person Extricated; Rapidity With Which Blaze Swept and Sheet of Blue Flame Seen by Witnesses. Brings Arson Theory.

CLEVELAND, June 8.—Possibility that the explosion and fire which destroyed the Ellington apartment hotel in downtown Cleveland early yesterday may have been of incendiary origin, loomed today as searchers extricated a fifth body from the ruins of the demolished structure.

The incendiarism theory was investigated while firemen and police continued to dig into the tangled debris for the bodies of other possible victims. Nine persons, who were among the 150 in the hotel at the time of the disaster were still missing this morning, and it was feared their lives may have been lost, bringing the death toll of the halocaust to 14.

BONUS 'GANG' LEADER HELD

Cowan, Charged as Being Communist, Held in Pittsburgh; Police Called.

PITTSBURGH, June 8.—Sullen grumbling of two hundred members of the Workers Ex-Service Men's league, a Communist organization, resulted in swift retaliation by Pittsburgh police this afternoon.

C. B. Cowan, Cleveland, leader of the group which participated in disruption of rail traffic at Cleveland last Saturday, was placed under arrest.

His followers who had been hustled through the city by police and dumped on the east of McKeesport with orders to "keep moving" indicated they would defy police. A call for aid was telephoned to the Greensburg barracks of the state police by local authorities.

The trouble began when Cowan declared he would lead his men back into Pittsburgh where they planned to demand freight transportation to Washington. He was promptly arrested.

His followers took to a nearby field, formed an improvised camp and broke up into sullen detached groups.

Assistant Superintendent of Police Ben H. Marshall in appealing for state police help said:

"These men are a bad lot. They are in an ugly mood. They're the same gang that seized the Cleveland railroad yard and fought police."

The men arrived here from New Castle this morning when attempts to seize a Baltimore and Ohio train there met with failure.

WESLEYAN PRESIDENT ISSPESKER

"Take Nothing, Not Even Education, for Granted," He Tells Seniors

HALL IS CROWDED

Fine Program Closes School Year Here; Class Largest

Stressing the fact that in this day and age, in which the nation is going through many hardships and crime is prevalent, education is of greater need than ever before, Dr. Edmund D. Soper, president of Ohio Wesleyan university, Delaware, delivered the commencement address to 70 graduates at the high school here Tuesday evening.

The auditorium, in which services were held, was crowded.

The speaker began his address after a short and appropriate invocation by J. O. Thompson, superintendent of schools, showing a copy of The Bible, which an account of the childhood of Walker Brown and Harry Loudermilk appeared with the high school commencement program in which the picture of Dr. Soper was shown. The manner in which the paper was folded, in which the word "Bible" was cut out and showed Dr. Soper's picture. After jesting a few moments in which he said he did not know what kind of religion to expect here after having his picture shown as an electrified person the speaker began on the fine points of his address, which he said would be influenced greatly by the account of the crime of Brown and Loudermilk.

"NEED OF EDUCATION"

Dr. Soper began by asking whether or not Walker Brown had a high school education. He said he was willing to assume that he did not have. He next questioned whether or not the negro could read or write and also surmised that he could do neither. Both his conclusions, as a matter of fact, were correct.

"This man Brown must have been more or less a savage," Dr. Soper said, "because the ability to read and write separates a human person from a savage. If we have no records to carry down through the years we do not know what is right and what is wrong. For instance I shall cite the passing of a mere rumor, even in Circleville. Someone at one end of the city might begin a rumor which would pass from person to person with hardly one fact being distorted here, another there and finally by the time the rumor has passed out the other end of the city the mild rumor has been expanded until none of the details rumored at first exist at the end. No one knows who started the rumor, and no one knows who changed this detail and that detail and with no background to support the rumor nothing definite is known. That is why we must have records and only by reading and writing can we have them."

"NOTHING FOR GRANTED"

"Education is taken entirely too much for granted," Dr. Soper continued. He cited that nothing should be taken for granted and only by gaining knowledge can we evade this danger. The ability of the American people to select the persons whom they wish to lead them through strife and trouble has never been faced with a more trying time than the present. He said we might have leaders who tell us to do things and we might do them not knowing what we are about but unless we are educated we shall follow the leadership of the few just as the aborigines did in ancient history.

We should not take our leaders for granted. We should be well enough educated to know whether or not leaders are doing the proper things to prove that they should hold our destinies. Dr. Soper stated.

The widely known speaker then

PLATFORM-FORMER GARFIELD, VETERAN

CLEVELAND, June 8.—A political platform of the Roosevelt era and the days of Teddy's Bull Moose party is being drafted by James R. Garfield, who has been summoned from the privacy of his law practice to handle the delicate task of writing the G. O. P. national platform for the Hoover vindication campaign.

It has been 18 years since Garfield, son of an assassinated president and intimate friend of two others, has been identified prominently in the political world. During that time he has built up a formidable private law practice.

Garfield is part of President Hoover's private convention personnel which is being drafted into nearly all the important positions due to the probability that many of those usually expected to handle those tasks may be tied up in Washington with Congress.

His biggest task as the time nears for the opening of the convention is the writing of a prohibition plank which will satisfy all members of the party. Liberal in his own views, Garfield is expected to draft a guard liberal plank although he steadfastly has refused to discuss the subject.

Most of Garfield's time during the last two or three weeks have been spent in Washington hearing the divergent opinion of the party leaders on the vital wet-dry question.

A trim, six-footer, Garfield's hair is grayed and thin and he has a closely-clipped mustache which makes him look much younger than his 66 years. When working, he usually can be found puffing away spasmodically at a blackened briar pipe.

Garfield first broke into politics in 1896 when he was elected to the Ohio senate. He remained for three years until President Roosevelt appointed him to the Federal Civil Service commission because of his excellent work in writing civil service legislation for the Buckeye State code.

Four years later, Garfield stepped up into the position of commissioner of corporations for the United States Department of Commerce and Labor. This also was a Roosevelt appointment. In this position, he was one of the most active federal officials in Roosevelt's famous trust-busting activities.

During Roosevelt's last year as president, Garfield was secretary of the interior in the "lawn tennis" cabinet.

When his former chief broke away from the Republican organization standards and 1912 and organized the Bull Moose party, Garfield immediately became an active worker in the organization. In 1914, he was the party's candidate for Governor, running a poor third in a field of four. Frank B. Willis beat James M. Cox in that race.

After that humiliating defeat, Garfield retired to private life and never since has been prominently active in politics. And until President Hoover began casting about for someone to take over writing the 1932 platform he remained in his office, building up a well established practice.

Children of the Pickaway-co Home will be among a crowd of 600 happy youngsters who will attend the twenty-fifth annual Outing given by the Columbus Automobile Club at Olentangy Park, Tuesday, June 21st.

Plans have been made to provide the youngsters with a full day of amusement.

The children will assemble at the State House, Columbus, and will proceed to Olentangy Park headed by the Franklin Post No. 1 Band of the American Legion, in time for a lunch prepared under the supervision of Mrs. Colonel Walter Collins of the Volunteers of America.

Through the courtesy of the Olentangy Park Amusement Company these children will have free rides and have access to many other park features. Ice cream, pop, and games will be available all day.

COPS AT SCRANTON

Aaron Butash, thirteen year old boy of Throop, a mining community, is the marble champion of Lockawanna county. Butash is the third Throop champion since the Scranton Times opened its territory to include the whole county. That was four years ago.

The Throop boy came to the finals in Scranton with his throat bandaged because of tonsillitis and with one of his fingers lacerated. Yet he won ten out of twelve games. At a Kiwanis dinner meeting where the champion was an honored guest following his win, The Times Marble Editor in introducing him explained the handicap and added that if Aaron only had the measles he would have won the whole twelve games.

Butash received a wrist watch from The Times, a season ticket to all baseball games from Scranton baseball team and a gold badge from Sheriff George T. Williams. The badge sets forth that Aaron is a special deputy of the county.

There were four boys in the finals. The Throop boy was the champion of the public schools outside of Scranton. He was opposed to the parochial school champion of the county and the two public school champions of Scranton. Playing a cool steady game and showing ability to play position the Throop boy won easily, taking five of six games played in each series.

Throon is just a couple miles north of Scranton. Its people are so enthused over the winning of the county championship that the burgess is going to have an official delegation attend the games and the school district is to send at least three of the men teachers.

When the young lawyer reads the words, "Sixty dollars a case," he knows they don't refer to jurisprudence.

Pamphlet Can Be Obtained By Veterans

Every veteran who has joined, or becomes a member of the American Legion for 1932, and whose card and dues are of record with the national organization by July 10th, will receive without charge a thirty-two page magazine size booklet, written in plain language, describing all federal and state laws pertaining to World War veterans.

This announcement was made by Paul Betz, post commander of the Legion here, following advice received from national headquarters in Indianapolis, Indiana.

Not only will there be a full description of all such laws, in words that any person will be able to understand, but all confusing technicalities, and most of the legal references, such as "202-10," will be eliminated.

SUGGESTIONS ON CLAIMS

One of the most important features of the booklet will be suggestions as to how claims may be started and followed through. Often an ex-service man knows in his own heart that he has a just claim for compensation, and that the government is willing and eager to do the right thing, but too often lack of information as to the proper method of procedure prevents the case receiving the attention it deserves. He gets a copy of the law and doesn't understand it. Perhaps he has written a few letters, when affidavit, made a certified copy of his discharge papers, or included a statement from his physician.

So far as national headquarters of the American Legion has been able to discover, there is no consolidated material in existence as will be contained in this booklet, and certainly there is none available without charge.

AVAILABLE TO MEMBERS

The booklet will be available only to those who are members of the Legion. It can not be purchased, and besides being of great value to the individual veteran, it likewise will be a sure guide to those who are requested from time to time to aid others with their claims.

In nearly every hamlet in the United States, the merchants and other outstanding public figures are often requested for advice by ex-service men, and the possession of this booklet will undoubtedly be the center of such gatherings in many places following. Its insurance.

Distribution of the booklet will be made with the August issue of The American Legion Monthly as a supplement of that publication, which goes each month to every member of the organization whose membership card and dues have been received. This means that the Monthly cards from all new members wishing to get this supplement must be cleared through posts and actually in The American Legion Monthly offices on July 10th.

READY FOR NATIONAL 4H CAMP AT WASHINGTON JUNE 15 TO 21

Tents are already being pitched on the U. S. Department of Agriculture grounds and other preparations are being made for the Sixth Annual National 4-H Club Camp at Washington, June 15 to 21.

Attendance at this National encampment is a reward for outstanding club work in the States. A feature this year will be the observance of the George Washington Bicentennial. The farm boys and girls will visit Mount Vernon and will attend a special Washington program in the Sylvan Theatre on the grounds near the Washington Monument.

Nearly 175 farm boys and girls will represent 40 or more States at the annual encampment, says George E. Farrell, the camp director. Each State is represented by two boys and two girls who have earned the trip by outstanding achievement in club work such as raising livestock, growing corn, planning meals and other farm and home activities.

The camp is held each year to help these young rural leaders become better acquainted with the U. S. Department of Agriculture, to see the Government at first hand and to meet 4-H members from other States.

In addition to camp activities, conferences, and club work study, the campers will hear speakers from various fields. These include Dr. C. W. Warburton, Director of Extension Work; Dr. C. E. Smith, Chief of the Office of Cooperative Extension Work; Dr. William F. Nitz, Dean of the School of Forestry Service of Georgetown Uni-

Visiting Rajah

One of the richest men in the world, Bhagad Chand Bahadur, Rajah of Jubal, India, is now realizing one of the ambitions of his life—seeing the Grand Canyon. The Rajah, shown above at Los Angeles, is on a world tour, accompanied by the Rance. He was so pleased by all he saw in America that he declared he will come back some day to spend a long vacation.

Vast
When man sits beneath the mighty frame of the King of the Dinosaurs, the Tyrannosaurus rex—it is not a few centuries that look down upon him but three hundred thousand. No more impressive view down the corridor of time is to be had than in this section of it, where these mighty beasts were turned to stone, millions of years before any human hunter came upon the earth.

Now that fossils and skeletons of these monsters are on exhibition in American museums, the nation's children may grow up with a consciousness of that past of long ago. This must have its effect in the orientation of their lives, since it gives a wider range for their imagination, a greater responsibility as the latest living heirs of a paternity that has been so vast a time in the gathering, and a larger outlook into the future of a world that has such a past.

Why these giants came, man probably will never know. Did nature think to establish a monarchy in the animal world in the evolution of this tyrant, this survivor of a carnivorous species that fed upon its herbivorous kind? The carnivorous fed upon the herbivorous; but when the prolific herbivores upon which the later depended failed because of a change in natural conditions, not only did the herbivorous perished but they dragged their kind down with them into an oblivion that would have been complete if nature had not taken pains to preserve stone memorials of the aeons of which it might be written, "There were giants in those days."

In their passing they give point to the thesis of that English essayist who contends that the massing of myriads calls in one giant organism having failed, the destiny of created things is to be worked out through the communication and cooperation of the myriad autonomous smaller individuals of the swarm, the flock, the herd.

Ticket Punching
At last a traveler has found time, or deemed it time, to complain of the incessant punching to which tickets held by passengers on public conveyances are subjected. He mentions the fact only to deplore it, that large numbers of men are kept in regular employment punching tickets on the railways. They have comrades who are engaged in the same kind of work on the buses and street cars. Those, however, would appear to be minor annoyances. It is against the railroad punch that the exasperated traveler nourishes his chief grievance.

The complainant admitteth that tickets must be punched, but he thinks that the time has come when one punch per ticket per passenger per journey might be considered sufficient. He fears that punching is being practiced for the mere sake of punching, and that the result of this redundant cancellation is that, when passengers arrive at their destination, they give up more sieves of pastboard bearing so little resemblance to the original ticket that the agent who issued it would not recognize it.

This duplication of effort provoked public protest because the punchers do not choose the time of their ticket exercise with consideration for the convenience and comfort of the passenger. To them the pleasure and comfort of the passenger mean nothing, because their office and its symbol are their all-in-all. Hence they restlessly awake people from naps, or even from sounder slumber, with the cry of "Tickets, please!" The holder of the ticket gets no real relief until it is taken from him for the last time, to be perhaps, subjected to private punchings too secret for the passenger to see.

About Growing Old
The psychologist who said the other day that old age and death is a mere matter of psychology, seems to be skipping about the edge of sophistry. To claim full credit for modern knowledge which has lengthened human life five years in two generations is one thing but to reach from that for a logical conclusion that life may be prolonged indefinitely by mere psychological effort is something different. This would be comforting to those who desire to live to be 240 years old, but before men reach that age other knowledge than merely how to wish for prolonged existence will be necessary.

To fix an arithmetical program by which human life is to be lengthened according to the ratio of the first modern steps in to create disappointment. Some time possibly, man may live to be much older than in this generation but when that time arrives human beings will be found living as well as thinking in a manner far from the habits of 1930.

"THE LOVE TRAP"

by ROBERT TERRY SHANNON
[COPYRIGHT BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.]

SYNOPSIS
Pretty Mary Kennedy breaks her engagement to the elderly but wealthy sports promoter, Buck Landers when she falls in love with his young ward, Steve Moore. Landers kidnaps Steve and threatens to frame him unless Mary marries Landers. Mary fights with Landers' henchman, Bat, to gain his confidence. She learns of Steve's whereabouts and goes there alone. In a dingy flat, Mary is confronted by two thugs who deny all knowledge of Steve. They hold her and phone Landers. Landers arrives and orders his men out. When Landers refuses to leave, Mary shoots at him, but misses. He flees. Steve confesses to Mary that he is engaged, but he loves her. Mary has misgivings when Steve plans a visit to Eileen Calvert, his fiancée, to explain the situation. Steve writes that he has not had an opportunity to speak with Eileen. Mary replies, pouring out her heart to him. She is waiting for a response when a telegram arrives.

CHAPTER XXXIV.
MARY took the telegram from the boy outside the door of her sister's apartment. A message from Steve was too intimate, too thrilling, to open before the family, lest they read the joy in her face.

"Am arriving New York tomorrow. Close friend of Steve's. Will call on you in evening for private conversation. Please try to be me."

WILLIAM CALVERT, JR.
Bill Calvert! Why, that was the brother of Eileen Calvert. And Steve had been engaged to Eileen. And what did that word "important" mean? It was so strange that Steve himself hadn't wired! She reread the message and her hands, as she held it, shook a little.

Behind the typed words of the telegram she seemed able to discern the sad, beautiful face of the other girl. A swift fear that something was wrong with Steve—that Eileen was involved—assailed her, but her will fought savagely any such notion. Nothing bad was going to happen—nothing to worry about could happen! She thrust the message into her bosom, went back into the apartment for her hat, and started out for a walk in the cool night air.

Her feet carried her block after block. She came to Prospect Park and walked for a long time along the footpaths amid the cool dark greenery of the trees. One or two men looked at her curiously, but her set white face forestalled them.

Upon a bench near a park light she read the telegram again. What had happened to Steve? Was he ill? Had he been injured in an accident? Had he been killed? Anguish writhed at the dreadful thought, but love came to her rescue. Their love was impregnable—nothing could break it or harm it. Love was a mighty fortress that sheltered them from all harm, all accidents, all blights common to the rest of humanity. In a calmer mood, she reconsidered the message.

No hint of trouble was suggested in its cryptic wording. Steve's friend was merely coming to New York—perhaps on business—and naturally Steve had told him to look her up. That was it, of course. Steve wanted Bill Calvert to see her; obviously, it would be important. What a fool she had been to worry!

The confident security in her heart continued to build, and she walked back home with all distress resolutely banished deep into the innermost caverns of her mind.

She was eager for tomorrow to come. Surely, there would be a letter from Steve in the morning's mail before she left for the office. But none came.

Throughout the day's work she tried to lose herself in the tasks at hand, but it was difficult to battle the impatience for night to come. When she got home again there was no letter from Steve. All that remained to do now was to wait for the appearance of William Calvert, Jr. Over and over she told herself she had nothing to worry about. When the buzzer in the apartment announced his coming, she tripped down the stairs, eager to meet him. He would bring her news of Steve—the spoken word—and that was the next best thing to seeing Steve himself!

She knew, by instinct, as soon as she saw him, that this youth waiting in the doorway of the apartment house was Bill Calvert. He, too, seemed to know her. He took off a Panama hat and smiled.

"This is Miss Kennedy, isn't it?"

He was tanned and muscular, wider about the shoulders than Steve, more athletic in bearing. Dark brown eyes looked at her pleasantly from a roundish, intelligent face. Mary thought he seemed more practical, more mature than Steve. And she knew, too, that he was popular—that he would never want for friends. At a glance, she felt him to be thoroughly honest.

"I've been so worried about your telegram," she said, intently, studying his face to read what was behind those brown eyes. "Steve is—he's all right, isn't he?"

"I'm sorry you were worried," he told her quickly. "Steve is perfectly all right—he's splendid. Perhaps it was the stupid way I worded the message that bothered you."

"I thought if it was 'important,' it must be serious," Mary said, with a smile of relief.

He smiled, but gave her no further assurance.

"I won't ask you upstairs because it's a small place, and it's rather cluttered up with the family just at present," Mary said. "I thought we could talk better if we walked out somewhere. It's nice in Prospect Park."

"Why, yes—just as you like. And you mustn't worry about Steve," he told her quickly. "Steve is perfectly all right—he's splendid. Perhaps it was the stupid way I worded the message that bothered you."

Care of Expectant Mothers Is Vital to Health of Offspring

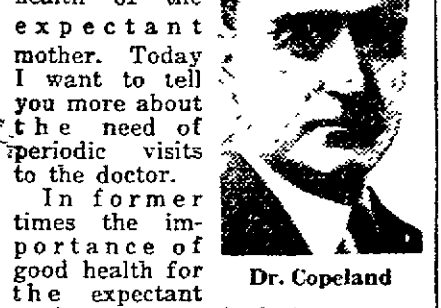

Frequent Examinations and Careful Attention to Diet and Apparel Are Necessary to Avoid Serious Complications to Parent and Child.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

RECENTLY I wrote about May Day and the plans of the American Child Health Association. You will recall that I spoke of the importance of nutrition in childhood, clean and abundant milk supply, and the health of the expectant mother. Today I want to tell you more about the need of periodic visits to the doctor.

In former times the importance of good health for the mother was overlooked, and this was largely due to the general lack of proper medical attention and hygienic instruction. The midwife preceded the physician, who was called only when complications occurred. That state of affairs no longer exists, but unfortunately many expectant mothers still neglect to take advantage of the advances made in the study of obstetrics.

It is now an accepted fact that the care which the expectant mother receives influences her future health as well as the health of the child. Periodic visits to the doctor, the hospital clinic or maternity center are imperative. All disturbing symptoms and complaints should be reported to the attending physician. In this way many complications and difficulties are recognized early and are

Boy Scout News

A swimming hike was held Friday evening in place of the weekly adoo meeting. The troop met in front of the Presbyterian church and hiked out to Darby Creek. After a fine swim the boys, numbering about twenty-five, climbed out and after dressing they gathered about the campfire which was blazing on the bank. The following campfire ceremony was of the type of the Indians campfire which is very solemn and impressive. After being dismissed by Mr. Young leading in the Scout prayer they hiked back to town. By the time they reached town however they were soaking wet and bespattered with mud. During the campfire plans were made to take the troop to the Court of Honor Tuesday evening. It was also announced that there would be only one indoor meeting per month through the summer season, the rest being hikes or something of the sort. It is announced that the surprise hike to be held next Friday is postponed.

Wednesday, June 26, 1932 THE CLEVELAND (OHIO) HERALD CLASS OF SEVENTY SENIORS RECEIVE DIPLOMAS

38 Boys and 32 Girls Are Included In 1932 Class

The 32 girls and 38 boys pictured here represent the 1932 graduating class of Circleville high school, the largest in the history of the institution.

Diplomas were granted to these young men and women at commencement exercises held in the high school auditorium Tuesday evening when Dr. E. D. Soper, president of Ohio Wesleyan university, Delaware, delivered the address to the class.

All pictures of the graduates were taken by Thornton's Studio, W. Main-st.

WESLEYAN PRESIDENT

spoke of a number of inventions and discoveries which have surrounded the world even in our age. He cited the harnessing of electricity, even though, he said, we still do not know what it is. He then told of the division of the atom by several of the world's most famous scientists, even though no one knows what the atom is. The power of the modern telescope was related among other things.

SEES DEVELOPMENTS

"The next 25 years," Dr. Soper said, "will see so many developments in the world that we shall have much more leisure time on our hands than ever before. Will we be educated enough to know what to do with our idle time or will we waste it away by playing pool or idling about the card tables as so many persons are wont to do at this time. I heard an address several years ago in which the speaker used as his subject 'What Do You Do When You Haven't Anything To Do?' and this question has been in my mind since that time.

"Our schools are more diversified than ever before, he continued, "and more persons are educated than ever before but still we have crime, even in greater volume than ever before. I'll admit I'm more in a haze than I ever have been."

Dr. Soper concluded his address by admonishing the 70 graduates that they should not take life not anything in life for granted but should strive to learn the secrets of what the world offers.

PROGRAM EXCELLENT

The evening's program was opened shortly after 8 p. m. by the high school orchestra under the direction of Prof. C. F. Zaenglein rendering "The Black Rose" by Brackton. The senior class mixed chorus, directed by Miss Johanna Tootle, music instructor, sang "Praise Ye the Father" after which Rev. C. H. Eichinger, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church pronounced invocation. A girl's sextet, Marie Richey, Ellen Bennett, Catherine Closson, Cennith Carothers, Ruth Moffitt and Sarah May directed by Miss Tootle sang "One Morning" by Hawley.

Robert Greenlee used "Science" as the subject of his salutatory address and told of the necessity of science in almost everything worthwhile that is done. Miss Marie Richey sang in a pleasing manner "Tears" by Olmstead.

The valedictory by Charles W. Plum was entitled "Culture and Music" in which the two factors make a better life. Gaylord Rose's saxophone solo "Valse Danseuse" preceded Dr. Soper's address.

AWARDS PRESENTED

The girl's sextet again sang this time presenting "The Snow" and a march "Rakoczy" by Page by the orchestra was followed by presen-

Hornsby Fears Trip Eastward

NEW YORK, June 8.—Chicago's Cubs never have been a good road team in recent years and apparently they are going to be under the same handicap this season.

Opening their initial eastern invasion yesterday, the Cubs lost to Brooklyn, 9 to 12, and relinquished the National League lead to the Boston Braves, whose game with the Cardinals was washed out by rain.

It was not merely that the Cubs lost, but that they blew wide open after leading 2 to 0 for six innings. Three errors, one of them mental, helped Brooklyn score six runs in a wild seventh inning and took the heart out of Lon Warneke, brilliant young Chicago pitcher.

Gabby Hartnett, Cub catcher, was the chief goat. He pulled a Heinie Zimmerman by chasing Tony Cuccinello across the unguarded home plate in an attempt run-up, and later dropped a throw to the plate prolonging the agony.

Brooklyn advanced to fifth place, passing the Reds, who lost to the Giants in the ninth inning, 4 to 3, when master Melvin Ott smacked his second home run of the game. Lombardi and Grant-ham hit homers for Cincinnati. Walker and Kelp did the throwing.

Eastern teams fared well in the resumption of inter-sectional warfare, winning five of the seven big league games played.

Pittsburgh smothered the Phillies, 7 to 4, shortstop Vaughan getting five of his team's seventeen hits. The Phils dropped to the cellar.

In the American league, the Athletics were tamed by Wes Ferrell of Cleveland, 4 to 3, despite two homers by Al Simmons with the bases empty. Ferrell hit two doubles and was driven home by Porter on each occasion.

Aided by six Detroit errors, three of which were committed by Gehring, the Yankees trounced Detroit, 9 to 2. Ruffing pitched for the winners.

A four-run rally in the eleventh game Washington an 8 to 5 decision over the White Sox. Myer, West, Reynolds, Kerr and Bluege each got three hits apiece for the Senators.

Home runs by Goose Goslin and Jack Burns accounted for five runs as the Browns downed the Red Sox, 6 to 1, in a fast game that lasted only an hour and 26 minutes. Walter Stewart hurled for St. Louis and yielded only six hits.

Designer of Olympic Trophies
Lady of Unusual Versatility

Besides Being a Famous Sculptress, Suzanne Farnham Is an Artist, Author and Politician. Made Best Bust of President Hoover.

Coming from her native Belgium during the World War to lecture in America on her country and its people, Baroness Silvercruys, daughter of Belgium's Chief Justice, fell so much in love with the United States that she stayed here, with the result that she is today one of the foremost women sculptors in the country. She is now Mrs. Suzanne Farnham with a beautiful home in New Haven, Conn., where her father-in-law is a professor at Yale University. Since her rise to fame as a sculptor, Mrs. Farnham has had many notable commissions, one of which was for a bust of President Hoover for Louvain University. Mrs. Hoover requested a copy of the bust for the White House, declaring it was the best likeness of the Chief Executive she had seen. This year, the brilliant young sculptress is more than usually busy, having been commissioned by the Olympic Committee to make statues of the contestants from Yale. Each figure is modeled from life and arrangements are being made to award the statues in bronze as Olympic trophies. Mrs. Farnham is also an author, finding time to write her autobiography, "Suzanne of Belgium." In politics, too, she knows her way about and has been made a delegate-at-large from Connecticut to the Republican national convention. On top of all this, Mrs. Farnham still finds time to work on a war memorial, which will be exhibited at the Paris Salon in the fall.

FERRELL DEFEATS PHILADELPHIA '9'

By International News Service
 Despite the misfortunes which have beset him all year, Wes Ferrell, the leading pitcher of the Cleveland Indians' pitching staff, may yet prove to be one of the most successful of major league hurlers in 1932.

Thanks to Ferrell, the Indians climbed back into first place in the American league today, while the star pitcher marked up his tenth victory of the season. He hurled a 4 to 3 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics, which was the first triumph he has scored over the Macks since 1920.

BEATS 50,000

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., June 8.—Defeating a field estimated at 50,000 mib fans, William Cullen, 12, of Folsom, Delaware county, has won the Philadelphia Metropolitan District marbles championship.

Short in stature but mighty in prowess, Bill, a dark eyed lad of serious mien, proved his mettle when he vanquished the champions of three other counties and the City of Philadelphia in the metropolitan district finals.

Winning the title gave Bill something he had wanted with all the fervor of 13 years. A bicycle, Bill's no softy, but when he saw that bike, all blue and chromium, why tears of joy just filled his eyes. Previously he had won a wrist watch which he prizes highly.

In sporting parlance Bill is a money player. His shooting ability is good but hardly commensurate with the pluck and cool nerve which supports him in the pinches. Not that his playing is to be sniffed at, not hardly. But the two qualities combined make Bill a great champ.

Bill refuses to predict what will happen when he plays in the National finals at Ocean City, N. J. He won't say he'll lose, neither will he declare that he will win. An attitude, most everyone will admit, which in itself means that the boy is starting right.

NEW JERSEY VICTOR

WILDWOOD, N. J., June 8.—Earl Theodore Weisgerber, freckled, tousle-haired and just plain dynamite in a marble ring, has won the Southern New Jersey marbles shooting championship.

He's 13, full of mischief and boyish good spirits. Also a knack for shooting marbles which places him way up the list. If Earl, whose friends call him "Shorty" doesn't make a name for himself in the National finals at Ocean City, it will be because "the wagon broke down completely."

In the regional finals which were played in Camden, Earl won nine straight games in the finals. He played three contestants, each a first class mibs manipulator, and the result of each game and match was identical. It's almost a habit with him, winning games.

Earl was coached by Frank Spang, 15, winner of the Southern New Jersey title and also of his league honors in the Nationals last year. Frank knows a bit about marbles and still plays a swell game, but Earl takes him into camp every time they meet.

By a curious coincidence Earl defeated this year the same boy Spang had to beat to win the title in 1931. He is Clarence Cramer, 14, Burlington county's champ. Cramer was determined to win the main chance this year but the diminutive Weisgerber proved his Nemesis.

Already the possessor of a wrist watch and a bicycle by virtue of his mibs victories, Earl doesn't intend to stop. The prizes offered by the National tourney are alluring to him and Wildwood's ace is determined to annex some of them if possible.

This Woman Lost 64 Pounds of Fat

Mrs. H. Price of Woodside, L. I. writes: "A year ago I weighed 190 lbs. I started to take Kruschen and now I weigh 126 and never felt better in my life and what's more, I took more like 20 yrs. old than the mother of 2 children, one of 19 and the other 18. My friends say it's marvelous the way I reduced."

To lose fat SAFELY and HARMLESSLY, take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen in glasses of hot water in the morning before breakfast—don't miss a morning—a bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle—but don't take chances—be sure it's Kruschen if not joyfully satisfied after the first bottle—money back.

What One Person Thinks Of Nation's Depression

Will They Catch Twin Title?

Apparently firm believers in the old maxim about early birds, these lovely sisters, Herta (left) and Renee von Haentjens, of Vienna, are the first European entrants for the first International Congress of Twins, to be staged in 1934 under the auspices of California's San Diego centennial exposition. Herta is now "Miss Austria" and, with her sister, will challenge "Misses America" for the "Misses Union" award.

Just now an article on 'the depression' is going the rounds of the newspapers. Here is an article written by Henry Amley of the Amarillo, Texas, New-Globe. It is in the popular vein, but has running through it's somewhat-forced humor a very basic philosophy which is wholesome reading these days. It may give our readers a smile and a realization of the fact that our misfortunes have their compensations, if we will look for them. Here is Amley's preachment:

"I like the depression. No more prosperity for me."

"I have had more fun since the depression started than I ever had in my life. I had forgotten how to live, what it meant to have real friends, what it was like to eat common everyday food. Fact is, I was getting just a little high hat."

"Three years ago, only one man of the News-Globe organization could be out of town at a time and he had to leave at the last minute and get back as soon as possible. Many times I have driven 100 miles to a banquet, sat through three hours of bunk in order to make a five-minute speech, then drive the 100 miles back so as to be ready for the next morning. Nowadays, as many News-Globe employees as are invited make those trips and we stay as long as we want to. The whole outfit could leave the office now and it wouldn't make any difference."

"I like the depression. I have time to visit my friends, to make new ones. Two years ago when I went to a neighboring town, I always stayed at the hotel. Now I go home with my friends, stay all night and enjoy home cooking. I have even spent the week-end with some of the boys who have been kind enough to invite me."

"It's great to drop into a store and feel that you can spend an hour or two or three or half a day just visiting and not feel that you are wasting valuable time. I like the depression."

"I am getting acquainted with my neighbors. In the last six months I have become acquainted with folks who have been living next door to me for three years? I am following the Biblical admonition, 'Love your neighbors.' One of my neighbors has one of the best-looking wives I have ever seen. She is a dandy. I am getting acquainted with my neighbors and learning to love them."

Three years ago I ordered my clothes from a merchant tailor—two and three at a time. All my clothes were good ones. I was always dressed up. But now, I haven't bought a suit in two years. I am mighty proud of my Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes. When I am dressed up and I don't mean maybe, I like the depression."

"Three years ago I was so busy that my wife was a busy that we didn't see much of each other, consequently we sort of lost interest in each other. I never went home to lunch. About twice a week I went home for dinner—at 6:30 o'clock. I never had time to go anywhere with her. If I did go on a party, I could never locate her since there was always a 'blond' or a 'red head' available I didn't worry much about it."

"My wife belonged to all the clubs in town. She even joined the young mothers club. We didn't have any children, but she was studying—and between playing bridge and going to clubs, she never was at home. We got stuck up and hifalutin. We even took down the old family bed and bought a set of twin beds—on the installment plan. When I would come home at night, if my wife was at home, she would already be in her bed and I would crawl in mine. If she came in last it was vice versa."

"We like the depression. We have come down off our pedestals and are really living at my house now. The twin beds are stored in the garage and the old family affair is being used. We are enjoying life. Instead of taking a hot water bottle to bed these cold nights, she sticks her heels in my back, just like she did before Hoover was elected."

"I haven't been out on a party in 18 months. I have lost my book of telephone numbers. My wife has dropped all the clubs. I believe we are falling in love all over again. I am pretty well satisfied with my wife. Thank I will keep her, at least until she is 40 and then if I feel like I do now I may trade her for two 20's."

"I am feeling better since the depression. I take more exercise. I walk to town and lot of folks who used to drive Cadillacs are walking with me. I like the depression? My digestion is better. I haven't been to see a doctor in a year. I can eat anything I want to. I am getting real honest-to-goodness food. Three years ago, we had filet mignon once a week, now we have round steak with flour gravy. Then, we had roast breast of guinea hen, now we are glad to get sow bosom with buttons on."

"I like the depression. My salary has been cut where I can't afford to buy lettuce and spinach and parsley and we can't afford to have sandwiches and frozen desserts and all that damfoolishness which has killed more good men than the World War. I like the depression. Three years ago, I never had time to go to church. I played golf all

Miss Walling Sets June 25

Miss Frances Walling, daughter of Mrs. Mabel Walling, W. Mount, whose betrothal to Dr. Richard L. Gill, prominent young professional man of Wheeling, W. Va., was announced a short time ago, has set Saturday, June 25, as the date for their marriage.

The ceremony is to be a quiet one, taking place in the afternoon in St. Matthew's Protestant Episcopal church in Wheeling. The vows will be exchanged at 4:30 o'clock, with Rev. J. H. A. Bomberger, the rector, reading the wedding service. Miss Walling has chosen Miss Hulda Seyfert, this city, to be her maid of honor and only attendant, and Dr. William Marco Sheppe is to serve Dr. Gill as best man. Joanne Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Rogers of Wooddale, will be the flower girl.

A reception for close friends of the principals will supplement the church ceremony taking place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Coudon Jr., in Woodlawn.

The bride-elect has made her home in Wheeling for the past several years, during which time she has directed the work of the Wheeling Country Day School. Miss Walling was graduated from Randolph-Macon in Lynchburg, Va. Dr. Gill is an alumnus of the University of Virginia and is a member of the staff of the Wheeling clinic.

Class Honors Bride-Elect

The June meeting of Mrs. Toensmeier's Bible Class met in the church parlors of the Presbyterian Church Tuesday evening and after the regular business meeting had been conducted by the president, Mrs. Donald Watt, a colorful tableau honoring Miss Margaret Weld-on, a bride-elect, was presented before an appreciative audience of forty members and guests.

The committee in charge of the entertainment was composed of Mrs. Ward Robinson, chairman, Mrs. G. L. Schear, Misses Marguerite Clarke and Virginia Marion, and the series of tableaux were conceived by Mrs. Robinson. Little Miss Marilyn Lutz served as Flower Girl, escorting the brides of other days to the center of the stage, to the accompaniment of appropriate music by Mrs. Toensmeier and Mrs. Harry Heffner. Each of the "brides" was costumed in wedding attire of a definite period of America social history.

Miss Dorothy Sampson represented the bride of 1850; Miss Bernadine Lutz, the bride of 1870; Miss Iola Wentworth, 1890; Mrs. Tom Renick, 1910; and Mrs. Franklin Kibler, 1932. Each spoke lines in keeping with the spirit of her day and age; and at the close the Flower Girl escorted the guest of honor, Miss Weld-on, to the stage, where the bride of 1932 presented a gift from the group to the bride-elect after which all the brides and guests joined in congratulations.

The stage, profusely and very suitably decorated with flowers, provided a perfect setting for the series of wedding scenes.

Delinquent Tax Brings Problem

COLUMBUS, June 8.—Despite relief legislation voted at the last regular session of the general assembly, the matter of delinquent taxes in Ohio still presents an abnormal problem according to members of the state commission.

Delinquent taxes at the beginning of 1932 exceeded $92,600,000 and indications are that the amount will be considerably greater for the year 1933.

"The state tax commission is powerless to cope with the situation," former state senator John Edwards of Licking county, a member of the commission said.

MATTER IMPORTANT
He declared that the matter is one that must be wrestled with by the various local taxing authorities such as the prosecuting attorney and the county treasurer.

At the last general session of the state legislature, authorization was granted for the payment of delinquent taxes in five installments instead of one. This legislation, however, has apparently proved inadequate, Edwards said.

The only present hope of relief to cities and other local subdivisions affected by the situation of delinquent taxes, Edwards estimated rests in the possibility that the state legislature will slash salaries of public officials and employees.

Salary slashing, Edwards said, will reduce the cost of governmental operations.

The matter of salary cuts is expected to be taken up by the state legislature at a special session which is contemplated this fall.

SALARY SLASHES

A howl for salary slashes was set up at last special session of the legislature but Governor George White vetoed the proposition over with a promise that it would be taken up at the legislative session he had in mind for this fall.

Delinquencies to date exist in all of Ohio's counties.

"Because of the economic depression, many taxpayers have been unable to pay their taxes and the local authorities have not been disposed to institute foreclosure proceedings against their properties," Edwards explained. "As a result the amount of delinquent taxes has been steadily growing." Over the last four years, the percentage of delinquent taxes has been increasing in all counties, statistics on file at the state tax commission reveal. The total for the state in 1928 was $45,100,000; in 1929, delinquent taxes went to $52,036,679 and in 1930 to $92,846,078.

If man is displaced as ruler of the world as a scientist prophesies, it will be by woman.
